COMMUNITY TELLS KREKORIAN: NO VOICE! NO WAY!
Los Angeles City Councilmember Krekorian Wants to Keep the Community Out of the Alcohol License Process

SAN RAFAEL, CA (December 4, 2018) – Members of Los Angeles Drug and Alcohol Policy Alliance \(LADAPA\) will hold a protest rally to demand that the public retains the right to comment upon any new off-sale alcohol license applications in Los Angeles. The rally will take place immediately prior to a Los Angeles City Planning hearing to review Councilmember Krekorian’s proposed alcohol streamline ordinance that will eliminate public comment from the restaurant alcohol licensing approval process.

If passed, the ordinance would allow businesses to cheaply and quickly get a permit to sell alcohol, while communities will no longer have a voice in how it’s sold, when it’s sold, or where it’s sold. The proposed ordinance will do away with public input and automatically grant licenses if restaurants agree to a set of very weak conditions. Opponents call it “a rubber stamp for harm”.

Two recent criminal indictments point to the need for greater public input and oversight of the alcohol licensing process in Los Angeles. A California Alcoholic Beverage Control (ABC) agent was “on the take” in Koreatown; and, Councilmember Jose Huizar, who chaired the PLUM committee that reviews alcohol license approvals for the City, has lost his position and is now under FBI investigation.

- Currently there are 7,878 businesses that sell alcohol in the City of Los Angeles. Over 1,055 new license applications are being processed right now.
- We cannot allow more alcohol into our neighborhoods unless there are significant protections for public health and safety.
- There is no enforcement plan element in Krekorian's proposal.
- According to a report by Alcohol Justice, Los Angeles County and City spend $2.2 billion a year mitigating alcohol-related harm.
